

IF you are tempted to say "I bought a Liberty Bond last time and I'm through," read this letter:

Dear Friends:—Last Summer, after being on a ship that was torpedoed, I was again torpedoed within a month on the English ship Korfu Castle in very nearly the same place. I was then placed on special service for the British Government, and have been transporting prisoners and despatches ever since.

Last week the greatest of all happened. I was transferred to the United States Navy, and I am glad that I can now fight under the Stars and Stripes. I was given the highest rank among the enlisted men, that of a chief boatswain's mate. I give a summary of my happenings.

August 19, 1914—Enlisted with the Canadians.

October, 1914—Went to England.

November, 1914—Went to France.

April, 1915—Wounded in action.

May, 1915—Torpedoed on hospital ship.

September, 1915—Back to duty, started for Gallipoli.

October, 1915—Torpedoed on troop ship.

November and December, 1915—In action in Mesopotamia.

January to June, 1916—General duties in Egypt.

July, 1916—In action aboard ship sunk by submarine.

October, 1916—Badly wounded in action.

October, 1916, to March, 1917—In hospital most of the time.

March to June, 1917—Back in France.

July, 1917—Again torpedoed.

August, 1917—Again on ship that was torpedoed while on special service for England.

On account of being an American I was allowed to resign and join the Americans, so your quota is plus one more.
